Born out of West Yorkshire Queer Stories' oral history project, I'm OK are you OK? inclusively represents the diverse stories of nine people from across the region. Ranging from sex 'education' in the 1960s to life as a QTPOC teen in present day Bradford, the film uses mixed media and a variety of storytelling modes to intimately relate lived experience. As such the following content warnings apply: references to sexual assault, assault and suicide; sexual imagery.*

*There are alternative edits available if sexual imagery is an issue. Please get in touch on the below contact details to discuss if necessary.
